

for the study of fluorescence of silicon clusters. In view of the rising number of studies of fluorescent silicon nanostructures for biomedical and other applications (McVey and Tilley, 2014; Dasog et al., 2014), the value and importance of such studies is clear.